■ Introduction of Studies

1. Theology

Pursuing the mission of Yemyung Graduate University, the Division of Theology was established to prepare a global pastor, missionary, theologian, and church leader in a rapidly changing situation of the contemporary church. The Division of Theology provides students the opportunity to explore and formulate constructive insights in advanced theological study, including the course of M.Div. for the practice of ministry or missionary and the course of Th.M./Ph.D. in a particular area of <Biblical Theology>, <Theoretical Theology>, <Practical Theology>, <Missiology>, <Church Music>, and <Jesusonoma Theology>. With a variety of concentrations, the vocation of the Division of Theology is to foster professional Christian leaders with a talent of intelligence, spirituality, and sensibility embodied and implemented in evangelical theology.

2. Leadership

The Division of Leadership of Yemyung Graduate University aims to facilitate the development of students who can be committed to impactful and inclusive leadership for a rapidly changing world of globalization. As the nation's first-ever graduate school of leadership studies, the Leadership Division provides an outstanding curriculum that not only investigates the theory and practice of leadership, but also cultivates professional leadership on a in-depth level. Following the mission of YGU aligned with Christian principles, the Leadership studies aim to promote student's knowledge and skills of leadership and prepare students to effectively engage in a variety of professional leadership areas including corporate, organization, politics, as well as Christian community.

3. Psychoanalysis Counseling

The Division of Psychoanalysis Counseling of Yemyung Graduate University offers academic programs for master's course(M.A. in Psychoanalysis Counseling) and doctoral course(Ph.D. in Psychoanalysis and Ph.D. in Counseling). Our programs aim to study all professional aspects of psychoanalysis including its history, literature(original texts in German, French, and Korean), cases, and more ranging over all generations from Sigmund Freud(1856-1939) to Jacques Lacan(1901-1981) in need of a solid foundation for theory and practice of psychoanalysis in the Korean society of the 21st century. Our programs and curriculum also aim to prepare students for applied and research careers as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and psychoanalyst in articulation with the Korean Society for Contemporary Psychonalysis. We heartily welcome you to join our degree programs conducive to more sophisticated research derived from the original text of Freud's works and in-depth studies and clinics of Lacan.

4. Social Welfare

The objective of the social welfare department of our university is to instill the values, knowledge, and tools necessary to explore social welfare sciences within the rapid structural changes of today's social environments and to foster professional competency for the application of these concepts in the practice of social welfare. Furthermore, the department aims to train our students to become qualified social welfare personnel capable of solving the increasing personal, domestic, and inter-community issues of modern society. We will prepare our students to improve the well-being and happiness of humanity. This will be achieved through education and training in policies, administration, and field application of social welfare.
